6. Application

1. General Information:

Memory Lab - Trans-European Exchange Platform on History and Remembrance brings together organizations, institutions and persons from Southeast Europe and from Western/Central Europe, which are working on memory sites and remembrance education related to difficult pasts (wars, mass crimes, dictatorships).<sup>1</sup> The aims of this initiative are to deepen mutual knowledge, exchange experiences, build capacities, facilitate contacts and realize common projects. Its general purpose is to strengthen constructive approaches of dealing with the past as part of civic education and democracy-building, and to contribute to cooperation and understanding processes in South Eastern Europe and in Europe in general, as well as to the integration of the Western Balkans into a common European civil society and memory space. The project was launched, under the name “Dealing with difficult pasts in the Western Balkans and Western Europe” in 2010 with a first gathering in Sarajevo; since then, seven more annual workshops/study trips have taken place, in Prijedor, Jasenovac and Vukovar (2011), Paris, Péronne and Oradour (2012), Berlin, Frankfurt/Oder and Ravensbrück (2013), Pristina, Skopje and Tetovo (2014), Brussels, Dinant and Ypres (2015), Belgrade, Novi Sad and Kragujevac (2016), and Madrid, Barcelona, La Jonquera and Rivesaltes (2017). More than 50 bilateral and multilateral activities have been developed in this time by partner organizations which met through the Memory Lab platform.

In 2019, the annual study trip/workshop will take place in Albania and will be dedicated to the exploration and discussion of the history of Albania in the 20th century, and especially to the period of the Communist dictatorship established by Enver Hoxha and the dealing with its legacies. Albania has been chosen for the annual study trip/workshop mainly for two reasons:

1) Albania belongs to the Western Balkans, but since it is not part of the post-Yugoslav area, it has so far been less in the focus of actors of international memory work. This also applies to Memory Lab, which has so far concentrated its work on the post-Yugoslav space with regard to South Eastern Europe. The program in Albania will allow to actors from different parts of Europe to discover and explore Albania’s history and culture of remembrance, and also to include actors from Albania in the Memory Lab-platform and in the development of future joint activities.

2) An examination of Albania's recent history and current culture of remembrance appears particularly interesting for two reasons: On the one hand because of Albania’s particular communist history within Southeastern and Eastern Europe, which raises the question of its specificity or non-specificity compared to other communist regimes. On the other hand because after the transition to democracy the communist past was for a long time not critically dealt with, while in recent years several initiatives have developed to change this situation, in order to critically examine the communist past, and to tackle dominating attitudes of silence, nostalgia, or minimization of committed crimes. Who are actors in this field of dealing with the communist past, and what challenges are they facing? What should happen with sites that have become symbols of the communist time? How to work with young people on this past? In reference to the hundreds of thousands of bunkers which had been built throughout Albania during the Communist period and which have become one of its symbols, one may ask: in which ways and under which circumstances is it possible to unbunker the past?

The program of the 9th Memory Lab study visit/workshop will combine visits to memory sites, presentations by and discussions with experts and time witnesses, and working sessions within the group. Tirana will be the main location, with trips to other towns during the program. The first day of the program will mainly be dedicated to the general introduction into Albanian history in the 20th century, the second to the dealing with the communist period, and on the third we will visit two places outside of Tirana connected to the communist past: the former prison in Spac, now an abandoned site, and memory sites in Shkodra, the main city in Northern Albania. On the fourth day we will work on the question what to do with the former prison in Spac, and will have the opportunity to think about future joint activities among Memory Lab-members. In the afternoon we will visit the town Kruja near Tirana, where we will explore the role of Skanderbeg as national Albanian hero in the communist time and today. On the last day we will put into larger context what we have seen in the previous days: What are similarities and differences between the communist period in Albania and other communist regimes in Europe on the one hand, and in the ways to deal with this history in Europe on the other hand? Finally we will present and discuss, in a public event, the main findings, conclusions and questions from the study trip/workshop.

For those who are interested we will propose an optional program on the following day, the 28th September 2019, with a trip to Gjirokastra in Southern Albania, whose city center has been declared UNESCO World Heritage Site in 2005 and where we will have the opportunity to explore the role of this city in Albanian history, including the Communist period.

The program of the trip has been prepared on the basis of an exploratory mission conducted from 29th October to 3rd November 2018 by several Memory Lab-members in Tirana (see <http://www.memorylab-europe.eu/upcomin/albania-and-it-s-place-in-international-memory-work> ).

2. Target group / Selection criteria

40 representatives of memorial centers, historical museums, NGOs and other organizations/initiatives from South Eastern Europe on the one hand, and from Western and Central Europe on the other hand, who are active in the field of dealing with difficult pasts (wars and dictatorships in Europe during the 20th century) in a practical way, especially around memory sites and in the educational field.

The participants are chosen through an Open Call which is launched in the beginning of March 2019 and will be open until 5th April 2019.

The selection of the participants will be done on the following basis:

a) General criteria for the constitution of the group:

- Practitioners who are dealing with history and memory work in Europe, especially in memorials, museums, and civil society organizations
- The group should be constituted by approx. 2/3 of ‘old’ participants (who have already participated at one or several of former annual Memory Lab study trips/workshops) and of 1/3 of ‘new’ participants
- Diversity regarding represented countries, professional backgrounds (Museums, NGOs, ...) and gender

b) Individual criteria for the applicants:

- Concrete / practical link to memory work
- For ‘old’ participants: Own commitment to Memory Lab (for example organization of joint activities with other Memory Lab associates), and benefit for one’s own work
- For new participants: potential own commitment to Memory Lab, and potential benefit for own work

3. Aims of the study trip/ workshop in 2019 in Albania:

- To explore and discuss the history of Albania in the 20th century, and especially the communist period (1946-1991)
- To explore and discuss how the Albanian society is dealing with its communist past, from the transition to democracy in the 1990s until today, with a specific focus on memory sites and the educational field
- To compare and connect the experiences from Albania with the memory-politics and memory-work in other parts of Europe, and especially with the question how the Communist past is dealt with in different European societies
- To deepen contacts and cooperation and to provide a space to work concretely on topics of common interest and to develop future activities between the participants of the Memory Lab platform
